Senate Investigators Pass Over Real Story of Lobbying Scandal

WASHINGTON—The real story of the lobbying scandal has been passed over by the Senate investigators. So far they have been probing into the utilities men themselves—men who are hired and paid and have spent their lives working for utilities and can be expected to lobby for them.

The real story pertains to the other group of lobbyists—the Inside Men—who can walk into the White House or onto the floor of Congress at any time. These were the men who really counted. These were the men who could change votes. And they did.

For the most part they were former members of Congress and formed members of the Democratic National Committee. They did their lobbying right on the floor of Congress.

Roll Call

Here is the roll call on some of them:

BRUCE KREMER—elephantine former Democratic National Committeeman from Montana who lobbied for Public Service of New Jersey. A close friend of Attorney General Cummings, Kremer is a past master at back-thumping and has amassed a large fortune representing Big Business in its fight against the New Deal. Roosevelt forced him to resign as National Committeeman, but he remains a great friend of the President's secretary, Marvin McIntyre.

ARTHUR MULLEN — former Democratic National Committeeman from Nebraska, who fought valiantly on behalf of Cities Service and the Henry L. Doherty interests. His chief operator was Senator Burke of Nebraska, whom Mullen helped elect, and whom he sent onto the Senate floor to change votes on the Holding Corporation Bill. Forced to resign as Committeeman; Mullen also remains a great friend of Marvin McIntyre.

ROBERT JACKSON — former Secretary of the Democratic National Committee and ardent lobbyist for Niagara Hudson Power Company, the United Corporation, and other Carlisle interests. One of the most charming members of the New Deal, Bob has waxed fat lobbying for the Old Deal. Now has rented the famous "Pink Palace," once owned by Margaret Fahnstock Stokes. He, too, is a social buddy of McIntyre's.

JOE TUMULTY—former efficient secretary to Woodrow Wilson; now one of the most effective lobbyists in Washington. He did valiant service for the Carlisle interests during the Holding Corporation fight.

GEORGE MOSES—wise-cracking former Republican Senator from New Hampshire, bon vivant, and still most popular with his former colleagues. Moses worked with the Committee of Public Utility Executives and was one of the glad-handers at the stag parties thrown by Senator Dieterick in lobbying against the Holding Corporation Bill.

PATRICK J. HURLEY—mirror-watching former Secretary of War under Herbert Hoover. He worked for Associated Gas and Electric. Pat first began lobbying for this firm when it was under investigation by Ferdinand Pecora and the Senate Banking Committee.

TOM McKEOWN—former member of Congress from Oklahoma; now also a lobbyist for Associated Gas and Electric. Once a Coal County cow-boy McKeown is short, fat, florid, and before being defeated for Congress, was tagged a progressive. In the Holding Corporation Bill fight he was one of the most active lobbyists.

TUCK MILLIGAN — former Congress from Missouri and at that time a champion of progressive legislation. Tuck now lobbies for Commonwealth Edison of Illinois.

CLYDE REED—former Republican Governor of Kansas, who came to Washington to help out Arthur Mullen as lobbyist of

NEW TAX PLAN BEING SPURRED BY ROOSEVELT

Delay and Opposition Bring President Actively Into Action

RESULT IS DOUBTFUL

Demands That Basic Principles be Retained

WASHINGTON, July 25—President Roosevelt, apparently with reluctance but with determination, today definitely entered the tax battle in congress in an effort to save his program from the twin danger of delay and opposition.

The action of Mr. Roosevelt represented a change of sentiment from earlier expressions in which it was indicated that he would leave the job of drafting the new tax bill to congress.

Confronted by the strong possibility that some of his major proposals might be thrown overboard, the President personally intervened in the dispute among house ways and means committee Democrats.

Active Until End

Congressional leaders said that they expected the president to take an active role in the tax battle until a final decision is made in the senate.

After informing house ways and means Democrats that the framing of an inheritance, gift, individual income and corporation tax should be hastened, Mr. Roosevelt sent word that he wants the basic principles laid down in his tax message retained.

White House pressure evidently had affected the struggle with the ways and means Democrats. Although a majority of members had expressed themselves as favoring an excess profits tax as a substitute for the president's graduated corporation income tax proposal, the issue now is regarded as doubtful.

Up to Single Vote

So close was the division of opinion among the Democrats after hearing from the president that one vote, yet to be recorded, may determine whether the graduated tax principle laid down by the President will be recognized.

The President's proposal for a graduated corporation tax was regarded as an essential part of his program to tax bigness and bring about decentralization of industry.

"The president is very anxious that the principle of the graduated tax be reconized," said Chairman Doughton (D) of North Carolina, of the house committee.

To prevent a decision from being overturned, the committee's Democrats had tentatively agreed to let the majority decide, and then to vote as a unit against Republicans on the committee.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement at his press conference opposing deductions from taxation for corporation charitable gifts was said to be due to strong propaganda for such action. The house committee, Doughton said, had not even considered it.

Allen T. Burns, vice-president of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., expressed deep disappointment over the president's attitude.

Mrs. Pera and her children

Sought for the slaying of her husband in Montgomery, W. Va., Mrs. Frances Pera was arrested by Indiana state police near Lebanon, Ind., as she was crossing Indiana in a moving van with her three children and furniture, en route to Joliet, Ill. In a confession obtained by the Indiana police, Mrs. Pera, an expectant mother, is alleged to have admitted she shot her husband as he slept, soaked his body in a disinfectant, wrapped it in a rug, called a moving van and started on the trip to Illinois. The cruelty of her husband, Gildo, a coal miner, was the motive, according to police. Mrs. Pera is pictured after her arrest, with Joseph, 14; Sylvia, 12, and Satina, five years old.

Reisinger, auditor for the state tax commission and Charles Leasure, attorney on the governor's staff, members of the committee, launched their probe.

Foes Uniting to Oust Huey Long

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 25.—Militant opposition to Sen. Huey P. Long in the state primaries in January today was beginning to crystallize in the Bayou state, with five of Louisiana's eight congressmen marching at the head of the parade.

Following a series of secret conferences here with anti-Long leaders from throughout the state, the five representatives late yesterday issued a signed statement charging Sen. Long with being a "self-confessed traitor to the party which elected him" and announcing that the "Democrats of this state will have a complete ticket" in the field against him.

FIVE ARE LEADERS—BK—

The signers were Representatives Riley J. Wilson, John N. Sandlin, Numa Montet, Cleveland Dear and J. Y. Sanders, Jr.

Bitterly assailing Sen. Long's vehement attacks against President Roosevelt, the congressmen pledged their whole-hearted support of the National administration.

Referring to Sen. Long's statement in the senate recently that he had "allowed" the five congressmen to return to Congress with the understanding that they would be able to get federal relief funds for the state, the representatives declared:

"So far as the senior United States senator's reference to the five congressmen making this statement is concerned, we denounce it without hesitation as wholly untrue and this to the knowledge of Senator Long. Indeed, he exhausted every political resource at his command to prevent their return to office."

Success Predicted

Complete success for the anti-Long ticket was predicted by the congressmen. They declared:

"We hazard the prediction that this ticket, representing ideals and principles which Mr. Long does not and cannot stand, will sweep the state and end a political regime which has been at once the disgrace and the shame of Louisiana and the nation."

GUARDS THROW BOMBS AT MOB

3,000 Dispersed in Terre Haute by Soldiers; Martial Law is Enforced.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 25—A milling mob of 3,000 persons, gathered near the Columbia Enameling and Stamping company, was dispersed by tear gas bombs released by national guardsmen early today.

Eleven of the rioters were jailed, bringing the total number of arrests to 180 since a general strike was declared by 48 unions last Monday.

Martial law, relaxed when the general strike was called off Tuesday night, was rigorously enforced. Col. Albert H. Whitcomb deployed 600 guardsmen about the Columbia plant.

Refusal of Columbian officials to recognize a company union resulted in a plant strike which precipitated the general walkout.

All taverns were ordered closed by Col. Whitcomb following the new outbreak, and street gatherings were forbidden.

Mrs. Edward MacBeth, 33, received severe cuts on the hands when she refused guardsmen's orders to halt and grabbed their bayonets. She was placed under arrest and taken to a hospital for treatment.

Federal conciliators are attempting to arbitrate the differences between the Columbia company and employes.

OFFICIALS OF CITY, COUNTY IN CONFAB; PROJECTS STOPPED

City and county officials today were pledged to co-operate in an effort to effectively handle the relief problem which will be faced as soon as direct FERA aid is withdrawn and the new PWA program is put into effect.

The finance committe of council and the three commissioners met in the council chamber Wednesday evening with O. S. Coffey, county relief director, to discuss ways and means of getting several projects into operation as soon as they are given approval.

Program Explained

Mr. Coffey explained the PWA program and informed the officials that the government is ready and willing to provide labor if the benefitting subdivisions do their share by guaranteeing materials. The city must take some kind of action to provide its share of material money and since Mr. Coffey informed the finance committee that it can issue bonds to purchase materials it is believed that this step will be taken.

The project foremost in the minds of relief, county and city officials is removal of the abandoned Scioto Valley Traction Co. rails through the city. The county has declared it is willing to help and the city will take every step possible to provide its share of the material expense. Officials are also planning to seek state assistance in the purchase of materials since Route 23 is a state road.

To Repair Walks

Another project to be pushed is that of sidewalks repair and construction. Service Director W. M. Justus has reported that many property owners are asking to have walks in front of their properties repaired. Government labor would be provided for this.

Mr. Coffey has already announced that the park project is certain to have government approval as soon as the Haswell land is purchased.

At present there are 500 employable men on relief in the county and all officials concerned are doing their best to provide relief for them through works projects.

PROJECTS SUSPENDED

O. S. Coffey, relief chief, announced today that all FERA works projects will be suspended this evening until further notice.

JACKSON FIRM FLAME-SWEPT

$75,000 Damage as Lightning Bolt Strikes; Ohio Cities Report Heavy Rain.

JACKSON, O., July 25—Flames started by a bolt of lightning today destroyed the main manufacturing unit of the Ohio Quartz Products Company, a mile west of here.

Loss was estimated at $75,000, the largest ever suffered by fire in the vicinity of Jackson. It was only partly covered by insurance.

Firemen Helpless

Due to its location outside the city limits, the Jackson fire department was helpless to combat the blaze at the quartz products plant.

In the midst of the blaze, several hundred gallons of oil stored in the building exploded, spurting flaming liquid high in the air and adding to the destruction.

The plant was constructed in 1930 by a firm capitalized at about a quarter of a million dollars for the manufacture of silica brick, but that product never was produced due to a drop in the market.

Gave 50 Jobs

However, the plant had been steadily producing sand and gravel filtration material and offered potential employment to 50 men.

D. G. Parry, Chillicothe, was president and treasurer of the company, with offices here.

Canton fared about the same. Basements were flooded, traffic tied up, and automobiles and trucks stalled as nearly two inches of rain fell in less than an hour.

AIDES HONOR DAVEY ON 51 ANNIVERSARY

COLUMBUS, July 25 — A large birthday cake was carried into the executive office at the statehouse today. It was the gift of the employes to Gov. Martin L. Davey who was 51 years old today.

Davey planned no special birthday observance. He said he was too busy with the state's business to even think about it.

The governor was born in Kent, O., July 25, 1884, elected mayor of that city at the age of 29, later became congressman from the 14th Ohio district, and finally chief executive in 1935.

3 KENTUCKIANS HURT IN WRECK

A Fort Thomas, Ky., Chevrolet sedan figured in an accident at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday on Route 22 about one-half mile east of New Holland.

The driver, Miss Katherine Fitzsimmons, a teacher, lost control of the car, which went off the road into a deep ditch and turned over.

Miss Fitzsimmons was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Mary Fitzsimmons and her brother, Charles Fitzsimmons. None of the occupants were seriously injured.

Miss Fitzsimmons sustained bruises and her mother and brother suffered cuts about the head. Five stitches were required to close one deep gash on Mrs. Fitzsimmon's forehead. All were treated at the office of Dr. Charles Davis in New Holland.

They were enroute to their home in Fort Thomas from New York.

STATE RELIEF CRISIS ENDED BY NEW GRANT

Federal Relief Office Allows Ohio Three Additional Millions

TO USE IN AUGUST

Delay in Projects Brings More Direct Aid

COLUMBUS, July 25— Thousands of relief clients in this state today turned an appreciative eye toward Washington where the federal emergency relief administration stepped in and averted suffering by raising Ohio's August direct relief allowance from $4,000,000 to $7,000,000.

C. C. Stillman, Ohio relief director, explained that the August allowance had been increased because of the tardiness in getting the new WPA program under way in this state.

"When the federal government gave us four millions for August," he explained, "it was assumed the new works program would get under way in earnest not later than July 20."

Projects Delayed

Ohio's PWA project requests do not yet have final approval at Washington and work has not started, although it was expected to get under way soon. The delay however, made additional August relief millions imperative.

The action came after Gov. Martin L. Davey refused to call a special session of the state legislature next month. He informed a group of representatives of Ohio big-city counties that he still intends to call a statewide relief conference of city and county officials early next week.

Davey declined to call the legislature back before fall and recommended that the representatives of city relief commissions and public officials who called on him en masse to go back home and endeavor to place into effect the Carey bill, which they described as "unworkable and inadequate."

Special Election

This measure, which provides approximately $15,000,000 a year for relief from utility excise taxes, would require special elections on bond issues in a majority of the counties and members of the relief officials' delegation claimed that approval of the voters would be next to impossible to obtain, even though approval of the bond issues would not mean additional taxes.

SUSPECT JAILED IN ROBLES CASE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 25—Believed to be the long-awaited "break" in the Robies kidnaping case, Doniciano Cabrera, 44-year-old former prize fighter, was held in jail here today for Sheriff John F. Belton of Tucson, Ariz.

Technically Doniciano was arrested on a felony warrant charging aggravated battery. He is said to have thrashed Goya Estrada, 14, who carried messages for kidnapers of 12-year-old June Robles in April, 1934. Estrada was beaten by a man who crawled into his room in June, 1934 after the lad had testified in court.

According to Sheriff Belton, Cabrera is wanted for questioning in the case on the theory he assertedly was hired to beat the boy by parties close to the actual kidnapers. Cabrera will not be questioned until the arrival here of officers from Tucson today, but according to deputy sheriffs who arrested him working on an SERA project here, he has admitted beating Goya, but denied any connection with the Robles case.

ROSS-CO OFFICIALS DEFEND $100,000 SUIT

CHILLICOTHE, July 25.—Charging that his petition is "vexatious, entirely frivolous and filed for the purpose of harassing the defendants," several Ross-co officials today began defense of the $100,000 damage action filed by Daniel M. Coyner, elderly Buckskin-twp resident.

The defendants are Common Pleas Judge Wilbur McKenzie, Prosecutor Lester Reid and Justice of the Peace William T. McDougal.

Coyner claims the officials conspired to deprive him of a fair trial in a peace bond case and that because he was forced to provide a peace bond, he has been deprived of his liberty.

Coyner was arrested in 1929 for disturbing the peace.

COUNTY URGED TO SEND CITIZENS TO RELIEF MEET

AID IN PARLEY TO END CRISIS

Committee of Three Sought; Trying to Force Davey Into Calling Solons.

COLUMBUS, July 25 — Cooperation of a representative group of citizens from Pickaway-co to aid the fight against the impending relief crisis in Ohio, was urged here today at a meeting of relief leaders from 14 counties.

Assembled to force Gov. Davey's hand in the relief situation which threatens to throw 330,000 unemployable persons on local authorities for food and shelter, the relief leaders invited each county to send a group of three persons to a meeting here next week.

This conference will be held on the morning of the same day that the Governor intends to call a meeting of local authorities to find a way out of the problem.

53 Visit Davey

Led by Marc Grossman of Cleveland, the group visited the Governor yesterday afternoon. Fifty-three representatives were present to show the state's chief executive the concern that was felt in industrial communities.

They presented a demand that a special session of the Legislature be called no later than Aug. 15 to provide ways and means to solve the coming crisis brought about by the Federal government's announced action to stop direct aid for Ohio.

At least $2,500,000 per month for the next six months and $2,000,000 per month for the remainder of the year is essential to care for the state's needy, leaders asserted.

Meet Dargusch

The Governor asked the group to appoint a committee to go over the problem with Carlton Dargusch, vice-chairman of the State Taxation commission and confer with him again at the time that he will call his statewide conference. No date however was set for this confeernce. It is expected that it will be called the first part of next week.

The meeting today was called by the Ohio Institute, headed by R. E. Miles, Columbus. Although only representatives of the industrial sections were present, the problems affect every county in the state.

On August 1, the direct aid granted by the federal government to Ohio is cut from approximately $9,000,000 to $4,000,000. Although a number of persons on relief rolls are expected to be obsorbed in PWA projects, each county will have to find a way of caring for at least half of the persons on relief rolls now.

Need Legislature

To solve the direct relief problem, the Governor has suggested that the state provide half and local authorities provide the other half of funds necessary. But only by legislative action can the state raise the necessary funds to provide its share of the contemplated plan. Many counties also will have to raise their share by bond issues and special elections.

Each county was urged to send a group of three representatives citizens here next week to offer a united front in bringing pressure to bear for an early legislative session.

A plan to form a state-wide relief corporation was also advanced at this meeting. At the same time, the Governor appointed Larry Wooddell, Ravenna, conservation director, and Carl Wahl, assistant highway director, to attempt to co-ordinate activities of the state with the Federal Government's recovery agencies, especially on projects of the Works Progress Administration and the PWA.

Attending yesterday's meeting were representatives from Cleveland, Lakewood, Toledo, Dayton, Canton, Warren, Steubenville, Niles, Columbus, Springfield, Mansfield, Massillon, Zanesville, and Akron.

ELSIE JANIS NOT CRITICAL

Badly Hurt, However, in Wreck With Husband; Operation Unnecessary

GREENBURGH, N. Y., July 25 —Elsie Janis, stage and radio star, who was injured seriously in an auto crash on the Saw Mill river parkway near here last night, is in no immediate danger, it was reported at the Grasslands hospital at Valhalla this morning.

Gilbert Wilson, Miss Janis' husband, who was driving the car, escaped with minor injuries. They were bound for their home at Phillipse Manor, north of Tarrytown, when they hurtled into a truck parked without lights at the side of the road.

Both were removed at once to the Grasslands hospital, where Miss Janis was first reported in a critical condition due to severe internal injuries and a possible fracture of the skull. Wilson was able to leave for home after treatment.

A hasty preliminary examination revealed the nature of the stage star's injuries to be grave, and it was decided an immediate operation would be necessary to save her life. Later, however, it became apparent no operation would be needed at once.

In a bulletin issued this morning, it was said Miss Janis was "responding favorably to treatment" and that although her condition remained unchanged, she was given an even chance to survive.

Community Saddened

Our community was saddened last Friday afternoon when it learned that Ernest A. Houk Jr. had been struck and killed by lightning. He was standing on a wagon loading wheat to be threshed when the bolt struck him. Another boy was in front of him driving the team. This boy was unhurt but the team of horses were killed and the wagon and wheat burned.

The bolt threw Ernest, or as he was more familiarly called "Steve," from the wagon and the driver leaped to safety before the fire.

Junior was 16 years old and leaves three sisters, one half brother and his sorrowing widowed mother.

His funeral was held at the home of his sister Mrs. Clyde Delay Sunday and burial made at London.

Mrs. Bauhan Home

Mrs. Clara Bauhan who was in Grant hospital is now at home and recovering from her operations.

CARROLL LINWOOD BEEDY

former Republican Congressman from Maine, who came down to fight the Holding Corporation Bill for Bangor Hydro-Electric and other Maine power companies. His instructions also included word to do everything possible to beat the PWA development of the Passamaquoddy power project.

So powerful were some of these lobbyists that Henry L. Doherty was able to visit the White House during the thick of the fight and take tea with the President. Responsible for gaining him entree was gangling, gray-haired Arthur Mullen, intimate friend of Marvin McIntyre, guardian of the White House door.

Note—Now that the lobbying investigation is going places, it is interesting to watch the social columns for notes on those who are finding the heat of Washington too much for them. Among those recently listed were two significant names: Bob Jackson and Bruce Kremer.

Strange Tale

The Senate's sensational disclosures of phony telegrams against the Holding Corporation Bill sprang from an insignificant hobby on the part of one Congressman.

He is Representative D. J. Driscoll, a liberal-Democratic new-comer from St. Marys, Pa. Tall, slender, scholarly looking, with a shock of snow-white hair, Driscoll has made it a point to read personally every communication he receives.

When the flood of anti-Holding Company Bill wires began to pour in on him, he took them home to read, and it was while perusing the 1,300 telegrams in the quiet of his study, that his hobby proved so valuable.

For years Driscoll has made a practice of studying proper names, their origin and meaning. In the course of this he has found that more names begin with W than any other letter, with S. T. and D next in frequency.

But Never a "W"

In sorting the utility telegrams Driscoll was struck by the fact that four-fifths of them bore names beginning with the first five letters of the alphabet and none with the letters W. S. or T.

This singular fact led him to a close examination of the names. He has wide acquaintance in his district, but in the hundreds of wires he found only a few whom he knew.

Driscoll decided there was something much amiss and set about to check his suspicions.

He wrote to one of the names he knew. The result was for the bill.

That was enough for Driscoll. He had a private talk with Chairman Hugo Black of the Senate probers, who in turn put some secret investigators on the trail.

What followed has been headline news ever since.

DOLE'S END IN SIGHT

ON NOVEMBER 1, according to an announcement by Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, direct relief will terminate. By that time, it is believed, 3,500,000 persons will have been given jobs through the operation of the new relief system, leaving to the individual states the problem of making provision for approximately 4,000,000 "unemployables," those who, for one reason or another, are out of work even in the best of timse.

This announcement means that the administration is now entering upon the final phase of its effort to stimulate the economic recovery of the nation through lavish expenditures in behalf of the millions of unemployed. This is a heartening stage of the battle and one of great significance. Within less than four months the country, to a greater than at any time since the beginning of the present administration must stand on its own feet. Federal sustenance, in large measure, will end and the people and the individual states must prepare to go it alone.

This is welcome news because it reflects the confidence of the administration, shared by business people who have not succumbed to defeatist influences, that the country has made great progress, not toward a return to the false prosperity levels of 1929, but toward a more substantial form of economic well-being.

The dole has been a wasteful, futile means of promoting recovery. Nevertheless it has served important purposes. It has prevented starvation and it has stood in the way of the development of a degree of social unrest which might easily have found expression in serious violence. In addition, however, it has sapped the morale of the people, has robbed thousands of their self-reliance and has resulted in the development of a substantial class of people who are willing to accept lower standards of living so long as the element of labor is not involved.

While the new program of public works has been slow in starting, a logical situation in view of the organization detail involved, more rapid progress is now being made. The people of the country, considering the future and also the significant circumstances that the summer recession in trade has been relatively negligible, have a sound basis for optimism.

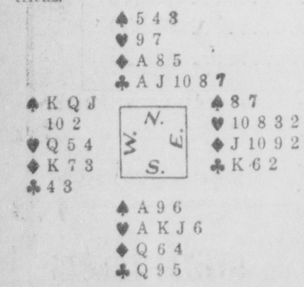
CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

SPREAD OR SQUEEZE?

ONE OF THE first things noted by a careful player is squeeze possibilities. The earlier in the game such possibilities are noted the brighter are declarer's chances to make that coup. The following hand which I played at the Engineers club showed squeeze probabilities from the first lead, with game certain in case West held the missing K of clubs. Without West's double and the squeeze thought strongly in mind I would have taken a heart finesse at the twelfth trick and gone down two tricks.

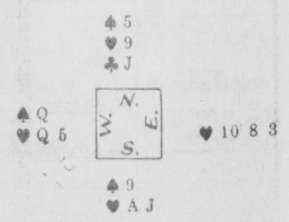


Bidding went: South, 1-No Trump; West, 2-Spades; North, 3-Clubs; South, 3-No Trumps, which West doubled.

Of course the opening lead was the K of spades. East played the 7. Then West led the bottom of his sequence, the 10. When East played the 8 it was evident that he held no more. My Ace took the trick.

West's double showed at least two possible cards of re-entry. He was too cautious a player to double on a single hope of entry. He might hold both missing K's and the Q of hearts. If West held the missing K of clubs the contract could certainly be fulfilled. I led the Q of clubs and lost to East's K. Back came the J of diamonds, which I knew better than to cover with the Q. Holding the third defensive trick East led the 10 of diamonds and was allowed to hold that also. When the 2 of diamonds was led the Q, K and Ace fell together, as expected. All remaining tricks had to be won to fulfill the game contract.

The 7 of hearts was led from dummy. East played low. The K won. West played the 4. The 9 of clubs took the eighth trick and dummy's 10 of clubs won the next trick. West let go his 2 of spades. His original hand could be counted for the 5-3-3-2 distribution. The tenth trick was won with dummy's Ace of clubs. East discarded his last diamond. I let go the 6 of hearts. West discarded next to his last spade. He was commencing to feel the pressure of being squeezed. The holdings about the table were as shown below.



When the last club was led I let go my last spade. East let go his lowest heart and so did West. He had to keep his lone spade. Dummy's last heart was led. East covered with the 10. It was deceptive. He might hold the Q and West might have the lone 8, but I played the Ace and caught West's Q, leaving the J good for the ninth trick for game.

THE DEVIL'S MANSION

COPYRIGHT By REX JARDIN

READ THIS FIRST:

Driving through a terrific thunderstorm in western Canada, Blair Rodman skids off the road and into a ditch. A light through the trees beckons him. Blair comes upon a large house but a homely woman servant refuses to admit him. Forcing his way in, the mistress of the house, a strange-looking person, says she can do nothing for him.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

A LARGE woman, Blair thought, even larger than the other. He was not small himself, being some five feet eleven and a half in height, but this woman, who must obviously be the mistress of the house, seemed taller than he was.

"I'm a peaceable man, madam," he started again, "please believe me . . . " he stopped short, for in the folds of the woman's neck, he thought he saw something moving. He strained his eyes to see, then turned away quickly to hide his disgust. Held by a tiny gold chain, so fine it seemed to be made of thread, was a small chameleon, exactly the color of her yellow skin. Green eyes like emeralds studded the head, and a red tongue, like a fang, protruded from the open moving mouth.

It was alive, and no larger than his little finger!

"You will leave immediately!" The woman demanded, her voice rising until it was nearly a shriek. Blair caught a note of fear in it.

"If you will tell me where I am . . . and how I can get to the next town . . . I tell you I'm lost . . . you have plenty of room to keep me for the night, if you will!"

"I have not!"

Blair looked back at the woman called Nita. She was standing where he had left her at the door, her lips still closed, her brown eyes on him. She, too, was dressed in black, although her dress was cheap and ill fitting, with full old-fashioned balloon sleeves.

"Haven't you a barn, any place, where I could stay?" Blair pleaded. He could hear the rain beating down on the windows, the frantic tap-tap of it on a tin pipe somewhere near.

The room was warm, almost too warm. He wondered how the woman could sit so close to the fire.

"You will leave, sir."

"Have you a telephone?"

"I have not!"

The chameleon was crawling down the woman's neck, and now it was half on her black dress bosom. Its color was changing slowly to a dirty gray, but its eyes were still like bright emeralds, and its red tongue was beating around wildly.

A door at the side swung open, as if a heavy weight had pushed it. And a dog stood snarling near him.

The woman at the fireplace had turned away, picked up a book which was on her lap.

Blair stood undecided, looking from the dog to the woman who must be the servant. He thought, although he was not sure, that a look of fear came into her eyes.

The dog, more like a wolf than a dog, came toward him slowly, its ears

The dog came toward him slowly.

lifted into two sharp points, its lips bared, its eyes red coals, glowing, burning red coals. Blair shifted his feet uneasily. The dog was a big beast, larger than a wolf, and yet not as large as a Great Dane. Its dark brown body was slender, and its head was big in proportion to its body.

The woman by the fire appeared to have forgotten him. She was bending over her book.

The dog was beside him now; he could feel the hot breath from its nostrils on his bare hands. Snarling like a wild animal it jumped at him.

Blair leaped aside and ran through the door which the servant was still holding half open, the dog at his heels. Down the porch, and through the high grass field he ran, stumbling now and then over some obstruction in the way. At the edge of the field the dog stopped and stood watching him while he ran on, until he had crossed the creek and was safe in his car.

Reaching down in the pocket at the side of the car, Blair found his revolver, and grasped it nervously, panting from his unwonted exertion.

Who were those fiends in that house? Fiends who would let a dog attack a man in their own house?

That woman with the five chameleon chained to her neck . . . hugging the fire so closely . . . Nita who held open the door for him. If she hadn't, well, he wouldn't be here now.

Whatever had possessed him to drive at night in a territory he didn't know? He must have missed the right road miles back.

Blair was sorry for a moment he had started on this western trip. Two months ago he was contented and reasonably happy in New York, without a thought of driving to the Pacific coast. Then a letter from Mark Taller, and an invitation to visit his new lodge in British Columbia. The flip of a coin, and he had started, driving, instead of the more sensible method of going by train.

True, he had had a fine time with Taller, but by this time the motor fever was well in his blood, and he decided after a few weeks' visit with his friend to go on to Vancouver, and from there down the coast.

How Taller had found this place of his in the mountains, miles from civilization, he didn't know. But Mark declared he was never going back to New York again, that he could write so much better away by himself.

But now he couldn't sit here, and get pneumonia! Blair threw the robe over his shoulders, dug another cap from his bag, and debated what he should do. If he stayed and fell asleep in the car, with his clothing soaked, his shoes wet, in the morning he might have a bad cold. And he didn't relish colds. If he walked down the road, at a decent clip, he would at least keep warm. And he might find a town beyond. No more bursting into lighted houses, he decided grimly.

Dinner Stories

LONG DISTANCE, PLEASE

The chief salesman of a company in a west coast city had a very loud voice.

One morning when the manager arrived at the offce he heard a terrific noise coming from the salesman's office.

"Who is that shouting?"

"That's Mr. Hill talking to New York," replied the secretary.

"Then tell him to use the telephone."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

The screen's greatest star in the screen's greatest comedy toriumph! The star of stars in the hit of hits!

Such has been the critical acclaim of John Barrymore's outstanding performance in Columbia's screen version of Broadway's great comedy smash. "20th Century," at the Grand Theatre.

Significantly, it was Barrymore himself who led the vanguard of raves with his own unsolicited declaration: "I've never done anything I like as well as this role. It's immense! A role that comes once in an actor's lifetime!"

AT THE CIRLCLE

Lovers of dogs will admire the fine specimens of Great Danes used in the filming of "Power," the Gaumont British screen production of Lion Feuchtwanger's famous book of the same name now playing at the Circle Theatre.

The script called for a leash of hounds. The breed used by hunters in the eighteenth century, the period in which the picture is set, have long been extinct, but in their stead, eight magnificent and pedigreed Danes were secured.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Patricia Ellis, one of the screen's youngest and loveliest leading ladies, plays the principal feminine role of Paramount's "Hold 'Em Yale," the new Damon Runyon film coming Friday to the Cliftona Theatre.

Featured with Cesar Romero, Larry Crabbe, William Frawley, Andy Devine and George Barbier, Miss Ellis plays a dizzy young heiress whose infatuation for uniforms gets her into plenty of trouble and almost causes a group of Broadway "hard citizens" to lose their collective mind.

Infatuated with the phony aviator's uniform worn by one of the "gang" she leaves home and lands in their hide-out where they plan to hold her until they can extract money from her father.

Poems That Live

A SUMMER WOOING

The wind went wooing the rose,
For the rose was fair,
How the rough wind won her, who knows?
But he left her bare,
Far away from his grace he blows:
Does the free wind care?

I have been using Sohio Herdoil since late in 1933, after seeing a demonstration at the Ohio State Fair.

I find it superior to any and all other sprays I have used in the past, and gladly recommend Sohio Herdoil to any herdsman or dairy.

CITY LOOP TO RESUME PLAY NEXT MONDAY

Permit Steinhauser to Enter High School Boys; Play Deals Controlled.

All difficulties which the recreation ball league had encountered in the last week were cleared up Wednesday evening when league team managers met in The Herald office, Squirrel Jones, manager of the Jones Specials, was the only absentee.

It was agreed to permit David Steinhauser to enter a team of high school boys to play under the banner of the Circleville Oils. All former members of the Oil team are free to join any team they wish, Glenn Nickerson, backer, declared.

Steinhauser will have on his squad, Carle, Sweyer, Henderson, Carothers, Rankin, Kirwin, Speakman, Curtain, Osborne and Smith. He is entitled to one other player in addition to himself.

With Same Teams

Emphatic announcement that players who performed in the first half still belong to the teams they played with at that time was made by President Frank Lynch. Several of the managers were under the impression that at the end of the first half players could join any team they wanted for the second half. "This is entirely wrong," the president said.

Joe Glitt, manager of the Pickaway Dairy team, announced that he had given Snyder, catcher, his release so he could play with the Purina Chow team, where he is employed. The Purinas are using all their own employes with the exception of First Baseman Iry Trimmer and Third Baseman Ike Brungs. Mart Hickey, Clarkie Stevens and several others are free to join whoever they please providing they first turn in their sweaters to the Chows. Unless they surrender their sweaters, President Lynch announces they will not be permitted to play with any other team.

Play on Monday

No effort will be made to resume the league schedule until Monday evening when the newly-formed Circleville Oil meets the Pickaway Dairy outfit.

On Tuesday the Cities Service and Purina Chow teams are scheduled, Wednesday the Eshelman Feeds and Circleville Oils play and Thursday the Pickaway Dairy and Cities Service teams are booked. An effort may be made to transfer this game to Friday evening since the Cities Service crew is booked at Newark for a game against the crack Richmer Oils on Thursday evening.

TREAT AT HARBOR HILLS

There's a real treat in store Saturday and Sunday on the Harbor Hills field at Buckeye Lake when the Iriquois Polo club of Lexington, Ky. meets the Harbor Hills team at 3 o'clock each day—The Lexington outfit is rated at five goals in the U. S. Polo association and has a fine string of mounts—An Oklahoma team is also to perform in the Sunday games with a round-robin of six chukkers between the three teams planned—It would be worth your while to witness at least one of the matches * * *

TURN IN SWEATERS

There is little glory, if any, in recreation ball or in any other sport for that matter, but it has always been a custom where requested by the management for athletes to turn in their sweaters at the end of the season or at any time the management might ask—The Purina Chows have reelased some of their first half players but a few of them have refused to turn in their jerseys—Frank Lynch, league president, has refused to permit the players to join in other teams until they hand in the sweaters * * * * * *

RAMBLING AROUND

Some baseball reports: Pittsburgh fans are souring on their old favorite, Pie Traynor, but his job still seems secure — Benny Bengough, former popular American association catcher, suffered a broken arm last week on a foul tip—Tom Carey, who performed a short while for the Red Birds a couple of years ago, has been purchased by Rogers Hornsby of the Browns—FIVE YEARS AGO, Dizzy Dean won 17 games for St. Joseph in the Western league and was transferred to Houston; TEN YEARS AGO, Ty Cobb, manager-outfielder of Detroit, was leading the American league with a batting average of .404 — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dean are expecting —

FIGURES SHOW CLOSE CONTESTS

NEW YORK, July 25—If the Yankees beat the Tigers in the final game of their series this afternoon, they will hold first place by a full game. The standings would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Yanks	52	33	.612
Tigers	54	36	.600

If the Tigers win, they will lead the Yanks by a full game and a half. The standings would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Tigers	55	35	.611
Yanks	51	34	.600

The Giants, leading by a game and a half, play the Cards a double-header this afternoon. A twin triumph would put them three and a half games in front, as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Giants	57	30	.655
Cards	54	34	.614

A split in the two games would leave the game and a half margin undisturbed. The standings would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Giants	56	31	.644
Cards	55	33	.625

But the Giants can go out of the lead for the first time since late April if they should drop both ends of their double bill. The Cards would then lead by half a game with the standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cards	56	32	.636
Giants	55	32	.632

STITH MAY HURL HERE ON SUNDAY

Doc Stith, one of the best softball pitchers in Columbus, is expected to accompany the Hill Tailors here Sunday when they play the Ford V-8s in a game on the SOElectric Co. field.

Members of the V-8 team will get a lot of swinging exercise if Stith is along, but the ball won't be where they swing, it will probably be on the way back to the pitcher.

OHIO DUCATS NEARLY GONE

Taylor Expects All Season Tickets To Be Sold Prior To August 1.

COLUMBUS, July 25— With a boom noted in the sale of season tickets and a flood of inquiries received at the Ohio State university football ticket office, Buckeye officials today looked toward the 1935 grid season to far surpass previous attendance records at Ohio stadium.

Henry Taylor, director of ticket sales at the university, revealed that over 1,800 of the available 2,000 season tickets have already been disposed with the remaining few sure to be sold in advance of August 1, closing date for ordering seasonal ducats.

The season tickets were placed on sale June 1 selling for $9.50 with $5 to be paid upon application and the remaining amount before September 1.

Upon disposal of the season tickets, Taylor and his corps of workers will start mailing out single contest tickets to approximately 60,000 applicants.

Advance indications point that the Ohio State-Notre Dame game here Nov. 2 will draw one of the biggest crowds in Buckeye history. It is freely predicted that a crowd of approximately 100,000 fans wouldn't be a surprise at the Buck-Irish contest.

INDIANS WIN SEVEN

COLUMBUS, July 25.—The Indianapolis Indians ran their latest winning streak up to seven by defeating Toledo, 11 to 4, and today were one-half game removed from the league-leading Minneapolis Millers who were swamped, 19 to 9, by Milwaukee.

The Indians' win also gave them a better grasp on second place with the third-place Columbus Red Birds splitting a doubleheader, losing the first, 9 to 6, and taking the nightcap, 19 to 2, in a six-inning game which was halted by rain.

St. Paul rallied to score four runs in the eighth and then sent three more across in the tenth to defeat Kansas City, 10 to 7. The win evened the current series between the Kaws and Saints.

'TEEING OFF'

A number of Pickaway Country club golfers got better acquainted Wednesday with their new professional, Emil Hrobon, at a fine stag party. The pro gave them some pointers on golf, touching on putting and all its intricacies.

A new order of things has gone into operation at the club. The fairways are in splendid condition so summer golf is now being played. Of course, if a golfer wants to do so he can tee-up, but it is advised that he doesn't since summer golf will be demanded in all tournament play.

Willis Liston is the latest addition to the club's golfing roster.

The London golf team will come here next Wednesday, July 31, to meet the Pickaway Country club team.

Marian Martin Pattern

Complete Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart Included

PATTERN 9487

Marian Martin pleases the little girl who wants to look "pretty" and the Mother who wants her to look "neat" by cleverly combining features of both in pattern 9487. You must admit that collar and smooth yoke are as neat and prim as anyone could want—so is the tailored front panel releasing into pleats! And little sister will note with glee it has precious puffed sleeves and a perky bow that make her feel as dressed-up as can be. Five pretty buttons make an inexpensive trimming for a dress that's ready for every occasion. Make it of dainty dimity, or sturdier gingham, percale or shantung. Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9487 may be ordered only in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 requires 2½ yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

THE MARIAN MARTIN SUMMER PATTERN BOOK will lead your way to warm weather Chic! From its forty pages view the parade of Clothes for every occasion for every member of the family. Designs all beautifully illustrated, patterns all easy to make. GRAHAM LISTS HIS PLATFORM

Candidate for G. O. P. Nomination Discusses 10 Departments In Campaign.

Will J. Graham, Circleville native and an active Republican for many years, today announced the platform upon which he is basing his campaign for the Republican nomination for mayor.

It follows:

Police Force

Sufficient force to afford protection to the community and deal properly with all emergencies that arise. Police the entire city. Social justice for all and no favorites. More rigid enforcement of traffic laws and making our streets safer for pedestrians.

Fire Department

Proper maintenance to render utmost efficiency at all times.

Library

In favor of still wider use of our already well patronized library. Owing to the enforced leisure on the part of our unemployed citizens we could have directive education for new leisure, study hours, reading clubs. Reading with a purpose.

Health

Strict enforcement of quarantine laws. Health education, prevention and cure.

Service Department

Proper upkeep and repair of all streets. Prompt removing of rubbish. Equal distribution of street work among the needy. Giving the best possible service for the money spent.

Civic

The bonds of trade, industry, agriculture, education, religion should be strengthened by co-operation and unity. Let us get together and work for that which helps mankind and the conditions of our city.

I believe that each person has a civic duty or contribution for uplift to render this community.

Welfare

We are all members of the human family. The National, State and City governments are dependant on us. I will use whatever means I may honorably command to develop in our citizens a greater loyalty in a co-operative way to the three great rocks on which this civilization was built. The Home—The School — The Church. It is our community environment which finally eternines the quality of human life. Here takes place of impact of education upon the unprejuiced child soul which produces the motives and reactions of adult life.

Merchants

I will use any means that are within my power to assist and further the interests of our local merchants.

Labor

Labor has suffered too great a decline to be redeemed through unaided efforts of our rulers and statesmen. I promise co-operation, equal distribution of all work to all classes, creeds and races.

Finance

Competent business administration of the city's affairs. For economy wherever possible. Wise spending of the taxpayer's money. No waste. Endeavor to live within our income.

STATE RELIEF

a member of the Cuyahoga county relief committee, contended that the measure, even if placed in effect by approval of bond issues in cities where elections would be necessary, would be merely a "stop-gap measure" and would provide relief for "not more than three months at the most."

Paul Gnau, Canton community fund chairman, protested more definite program is necessary to convince federal authorities that Ohio is attempting to do its share in meeting the relief problem."

Yes, the pioneers were happy with little. But they weren't surrounded by swell neighbors who had more.

Senate Investigators Pass Over Real Story of Lobbying Scandal

WASHINGTON—The real story of the lobbying scandal has been passed over by the Senate investigators. So far they have been probing into the utilities men themselves—men who are hired and paid and have spent their lives working for utilities and can be expected to lobby for them.

The real story pertains to the other group of lobbyists—the Inside Men—who can walk into the White House or onto the floor of Congress at any time. These were the men who really counted. These were the men who could change votes. And they did.

For the most part they were former members of Congress and formed members of the Democratic National Committee. They did their lobbying right on the floor of Congress.

Roll Call

Here is the roll call on some of them:

BRUCE KREMER—elephantine former Democratic National Committeeman from Montana who lobbied for Public Service of New Jersey. A close friend of Attorney General Cummings, Kremer is a past master at back-thumping and has amassed a large fortune representing Big Business in its fight against the New Deal. Roosevelt forced him to resign as National Committeeman, but he remains a great friend of the President's secretary, Marvin McIntyre.

ARTHUR MULLEN — former Democratic National Committeeman from Nebraska, who fought valiantly on behalf of Cities Service and the Henry L. Doherty interests. His chief operator was Senator Burke of Nebraska, whom Mullen helped elect, and whom he sent onto the Senate floor to change votes on the Holding Corporation Bill. Forced to resign as Committeeman; Mullen also remains a great friend of Marvin McIntyre.

ROBERT JACKSON — former Secretary of the Democratic National Committee and ardent lobbyist for Niagara Hudson Power Company, the United Corporation, and other Carlisle interests. One of the most charming members of the New Deal, Bob has waxed fat lobbying for the Old Deal. Now has rented the famous "Pink Palace," once owned by Margaret Fahnstock Stokes. He, too, is a social buddy of McIntyre's.

JOE TUMULTY—former efficient secretary to Woodrow Wilson; now one of the most effective lobbyists in Washington. He did valiant service for the Carlisle interests during the Holding Corporation fight.

GEORGE MOSES wise-cracking former Republican Senator from New Hampshire, bon vivant, and still most popular with his former colleagues. Moses worked with the Committee of Public Utility Executives and was one of the glad-handers at the stag parties thrown by Senator Dieterick in lobbying against the Holding Corporation Bill.

PATRICK J. HURLEY mirror-watching former Secretary of War under Herbert Hoover. He worked for Associated Gas and Electric. Pat first began lobbying for this firm when it was under investigation by Ferdinand Pecora and the Senate Banking Committee.

TOM McKEOWN - former member of Congress from Oklahoma; now also a lobbyist for Associated Gas and Electric. Once a Coal County cow-boy McKeown is short, fat, florid, and before being defeated for Congress, was tagged a progressive. In the Holding Corporation Bill fight, he was one of the most active lobbyists.

TUCK MILLIGAN - former Congress from Missouri and at that time a champion of progressive legislation. Tuck now lobbies for Commonwealth Edison of Illinois.

CLYDE REED former Republican Governor of Kansas, who came to Washington to help out Arthur Mullen as lobbyist of

NEW TAX PLAN BEING SPURRED BY ROOSEVELT

Delay and Opposition Bring President Actively Into Action

RESULT IS DOUBTFUL

Demands That Basic Principles be Retained

WASHINGTON, July 25—President Roosevelt, apparently with reluctance but with determination, today definitely entered the tax battle in congress in an effort to save his program from the twin danger of delay and opposition.

The action of Mr. Roosevelt represented a change of sentiment from earlier expressions in which it was indicated that he would leave the job of drafting the new tax bill to congress.

Confronted by the strong possibility that some of his major proposals might be thrown overboard, the President personally intervened in the dispute among house ways and means committee Democrats.

Active Until End

Congressional leaders said that they expected the president to take an active role in the tax battle until a final decision is made in the senate.

After informing house ways and means Democrats that the framing of an inheritance, gift, individual income and corporation tax should be hastened, Mr. Roosevelt sent word that he wants the basic principles laid down in his tax message retained.

White House pressure evidently had affected the struggle with the ways and means Democrats. Although a majority of members had expressed themselves as favoring an excess profits tax as a substitute for the president's graduated corporation income tax proposal, the issue now is regarded as doubtful.

Up to Single Vote

So close was the division of opinion among the Democrats after hearing from the president that one vote, yet to be recorded, may determine whether the graduated tax principle laid down by the President will be recognized.

The President's proposal for a graduated corporation tax was regarded as an essential part of his program to tax bigness and bring about decentralization of industry.

"The president is very anxious that the principle of the graduated tax be reconized," said Chairman Doughton (D) of North Carolina, of the house committee.

To prevent a decision from being overturned, the committee's Democrats had tentatively agreed to let the majority decide, and then to vote as a unit against Republicans on the committee.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement at his press conference opposing deductions from taxation for corporation charitable gifts was said to be due to strong propaganda for such action. The house committee, Doughton said, had not even considered it.

Allen T. Burns, vice-president of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., expressed deep disappointment over the president's attitude.

HUNTED AS SLAYER, FOUND IN VAN

Mrs. Pera and her children

Sought for the slaying of her husband in Montgomery, W. Va., Mrs. Frances Pera was arrested by Indiana state police near Lebanon, Ind., as she was crossing Indiana in a moving van with her three children and furniture, en route to Joliet, Ill. In a confession obtained by the Indiana police, Mrs. Pera, an expectant mother, is alleged to have admitted she shot her husband as he slept, soaked his body in a disinfectant, wrapped it in a rug, called a moving van and started on the trip to Illinois. The cruelty of her husband, Gildo, a coal miner, was the motive, according to police. Mrs. Pera is pictured after her arrest, with Joseph, 14; Sylvia, 12, and Satina, five years old.

HAYS URGING FAIR INQUIRY

Head of Xenia Home Throws Open Doors to Double-Barreled Probe.

XENIA, July 25.—Capt. Harold L. Hays, superintendent of the Xenia Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home today threw open the doors of the institution to Gov. Martin L. Davey's investigating committee after flatly denying charges the governor said have been made against administration of the home.

"All I ask is a fair investigation," declared Hays, who returned from Camp Perry as Col. Gilson D. Light, Toledo, chairman of Davey's committee of probers, H. R. Reisinger, auditor for the state tax commission and Charles Leasure, attorney on the governor's staff, members of the committee, launched their probe.

Light, a national guard officer, observer for the state during numerous strike disturbances, promised Hays the investigation will be "open and above board" and offered to work in co-operation with a committee named by the state American Legion to study conditions at the home.

Foes Uniting to Oust Huey Long

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 25.—Militant opposition to Sen. Huey P. Long in the state primaries in January today was beginning to crystallize in the Bayou state, with five of Louisiana's eight congressmen marching at the head of the parade.

Following a series of secret conferences here with anti-Long leaders from throughout the state, the five representatives late yesterday issued a signed statement charging Sen. Long with being a "self-confessed traitor to the party which elected him" and announcing that the "Democrats of this state will have a complete ticket" in the field against him.

FIVE ARE LEADERS BK

The signers were Representatives Riley J. Wilson, John N. Sandlin, Numa Montet, Cleveland Dear and J. Y. Sanders, Jr.

Bitterly assailing Sen. Long's vehement attacks against President Roosevelt, the congressmen pledged their whole-hearted support of the National administration.

Referring to Sen. Long's statement in the senate recently that he had "allowed" the five congressmen to return to Congress with the understanding that they would be able to get federal relief funds for the state, the representatives declared:

"So far as the senior United States senator's reference to the five congressmen making this statement is concerned, we denounce it without hesitation as wholly untrue and this to the knowledge of Senator Long. Indeed, he exhausted every political resource at his command to prevent their return to office."

Success Predicted

Complete success for the anti-Long ticket was predicted by the congressmen. They declared:

"We hazard the prediction that this ticket, representing ideals and principles which Mr. Long does not and cannot stand, will sweep the state and end a political regime which has been at once the disgrace and the shame of Louisiana and the nation."

GUARDS THROW BOMBS AT MOB

3,000 Dispersed in Terre Haute by Soldiers; Martial Law is Enforced.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., July 25—A milling mob of 3,000 persons, gathered near the Columbia Enameling and Stamping company, was dispersed by tear gas bombs released by national guardsmen early today.

Eleven of the rioters were jailed, bringing the total number of arrests to 180 since a general strike was declared by 48 unions last Monday.

Martial law, relaxed when the general strike was called off Tuesday night, was rigorously enforced. Col. Albert H. Whitcomb deployed 600 guardsmen about the Columbia plant.

Refusal of Columbian officials to recognize a company union resulted in a plant strike which precipitated the general walkout.

All taverns were ordered closed by Col. Whitcomb following the new outbreak, and street gatherings were forbidden.

Mrs. Edward MacBeth, 33, received severe cuts on the hands when she refused guardsmen's orders to halt and grabbed their bayonets. She was placed under arrest and taken to a hospital for treatment.

Federal conciliators are attempting to arbitrate the differences between the Columbia company and employes.

OFFICIALS OF CITY, COUNTY IN CONFAB; PROJECTS STOPPED

City and county officials today were pledged to co-operate in an effort to effectively handle the relief problem which will be faced as soon as direct FERA aid is withdrawn and the new PWA program is put into effect.

The finance committe of council and the three commissioners met in the council chamber Wednesday evening with O. S. Coffey, county relief director, to discuss ways and means of getting several projects into operation as soon as they are given approval.

Program Explained

Mr. Coffey explained the PWA program and informed the officials that the government is ready and willing to provide labor if the benefitting subdivisions do their share by guaranteeing materials. The city must take some kind of action to provide its share of material money and since Mr. Coffey informed the finance committee that it can issue bonds to purchase materials it is believed that this step will be taken.

The project foremost in the minds of relief, county and city officials is removal of the abandoned Scioto Valley Traction Co. rails through the city. The county has declared it is willing to help and the city will take every step possible to provide its share of the material expense. Officials are also planning to seek state assistance in the purchase of materials since Route 23 is a state road.

To Repair Walks

Another project to be pushed is that of sidewalks repair and construction. Service Director W. M. Justus has reported that many property owners are asking to have walks in front of their properties repaired. Government labor would be provided for this.

Mr. Coffey has already announced that the park project is certain to have government approval as soon as the Haswell land is purchased.

At present there are 500 employable men on relief in the county and all officials concerned are doing their best to provide relief for them through works projects.

PROJECTS SUSPENDED

O. S. Coffey, relief chief, announced today that all FERA works projects will be suspended this evening until further notice.

JACKSON FIRM FLAME-SWEPT

$75,000 Damage as Lightning Bolt Strikes; Ohio Cities Report Heavy Rain.

JACKSON, O., July 25 Flames started by a bolt of lightning today destroyed the main manufacturing unit of the Ohio Quartz Products Company, a mile west of here.

Loss was estimated at $75,000, the largest ever suffered by fire in the vicinity of Jackson. It was only partly covered by insurance.

Firemen Helpless

Due to its location outside the city limits, the Jackson fire department was helpless to combat the blaze at the quartz products plant.

In the midst of the blaze, several hundred gallons of oil stored in the building exploded, spurting flaming liquid high in the air and adding to the destruction.

The plant was constructed in 1930 by a firm capitalized at about a quarter of a million dollars for the manufacture of silica brick, but that product never was produced due to a drop in the market.

Gave 50 Jobs

However, the plant had been steadily producing sand and gravel filtration material and offered potential employment to 50 men.

D. G. Parry, Chillicothe, was president and treasurer of the company, with offices here.

By International News Service

Scattered communities throughout northern Ohio were waterlogged today after rains that reached cloudburst proportions—in one city breaking rainfall records of the past 31 years.

Wooster today reported that rainfall during the night brought the 24-hour total to 3.23 inches, the largest amount there in any one day since 1904.

Canton fared about the same. Basements were flooded, traffic tied up, and automobiles and trucks stalled as nearly two inches of rain fell in less than an hour.

AIDES HONOR DAVEY ON 51 ANNIVERSARY

COLUMBUS, July 25 — A large birthday cake was carried into the executive office at the statehouse today. It was the gift of the employes to Gov. Martin L. Davey who was 51 years old today.

Davey planned no special birthday observance. He said he was too busy with the state's business to even think about it.

The governor was born in Kent, O., July 25, 1884, elected mayor of that city at the age of 29, later became congressman from the 11th Ohio district, and finally chief executive in 1935.

3 KENTUCKIANS HURT IN WRECK

A Fort Thomas, Ky., Chevrolet sedan figured in an accident at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday on Route 22 about one-half mile east of New Holland.

The driver, Miss Katherine Fitzsimmons, a teacher, lost control of the car, which went off the road into a deep ditch and turned over.

Miss Fitzsimmons was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Mary Fitzsimmons and her brother, Charles Fitzsimmons. None of the occupants were seriously injured.

Miss Fitzsimmons sustained bruises and her mother and brother suffered cuts about the head. Five stitches were required to close one deep gash on Miss Fitzsimmon's forehead. All were treated at the office of Dr. Charles Davis in New Holland.

They were enroute to their home in Ft. Thomas from New York.

W. M. Justus, city service director and health officer, was informed today that since the Ohio Milk Marketing law is now extinct it is not necessary for dairymen to have licenses.

STATE RELIEF CRISIS ENDED BY NEW GRANT

Federal Relief Office Allows Ohio Three Additional Millions

TO USE IN AUGUST

Delay in Projects Brings More Direct Aid

COLUMBUS, July 25— Thousands of relief clients in this state today turned an appreciative eye toward Washington where the federal emergency relief administration stepped in and averted suffering by raising Ohio's August direct relief allowance from $4,000,000 to $7,000,000.

C. C. Stillman, Ohio relief director, explained that the August allowance had been increased because of the tardiness in getting the new WPA program under way in this state.

"When the federal government gave us four millions for August," he explained, "it was assumed the new works program would get under way in earnest not later than July 20."

Projects Delayed

Ohio's PWA project requests do not yet have final approval at Washington and work has not started, although it was expected to get under way soon. The delay however, made additional August relief millions imperative.

The action came after Gov. Martin L. Davey refused to call a special session of the state legislature next month. He informed a group of representatives of Ohio big-city counties that he still intends to call a statewide relief conference of city and county officials early next week.

Davey declined to call the legislature back before fall and recommended that the representatives of city relief commissions and public officials who called on him en masse to go back home and endeavor to place into effect the Carey bill, which they described as "unworkable and inadequate."

Special Election

This measure, which provides approximately $15,000,000 a year for relief from utility excise taxes, would require special elections on bond issues in a majority of the counties and members of the relief officials' delegation claimed that approval of the voters would be next to impossible to obtain, even though approval of the bond issues would not mean additional taxes.

SUSPECT JAILED IN ROBLES CASE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 25—Believed to be the long-awaited "break" in the Robies kidnaping case, Doniciano Cabrera, 44-year-old former prize fighter, was held in jail here today for Sheriff John F. Belton of Tucson, Ariz.

Technically Doniciano was arrested on a felony warrant charging aggravated battery. He is said to have thrashed Goya Estrada, 14, who carried messages for kidnapers of 12-year-old June Robles in April, 1934. Estrada was beaten by a man who crawled into his room in June, 1934 after the lad had testified in court.

According to Sheriff Belton, Cabrera is wanted for questioning in the case on the theory he assertedly was hired to beat the boy by parties close to the actual kidnapers. Cabrera will not be questioned until the arrival here of officers from Tucson today, but according to deputy sheriffs who arrested him working on an SERA project here, he has admitted beating Goya, but denied any connection with the Robles case.

ROSS-CO OFFICIALS DEFEND $100,000 SUIT

CHILLICOTHE, July 25.—Charging that his petition is "vexatious, entirely frivolous and filed for the purpose of harassing the defendants," several Ross-co officials today began defense of the $100,000 damage action filed by Daniel M. Coyner, elderly Buckskin-twp resident.

The defendants are Common Pleas Judge Wilbur McKenzie, Prosecutor Lester Reid and Justice of the Peace William T. McDougal.

Coyner claims the officials conspired to deprive him of a fair trial in a peace bond case and that because he was forced to provide a peace bond, he has been deprived of his liberty.

Coyner was arrested in 1929 for disturbing the peace.

ACTRESS IN RENO

RENO, Nev., July 25.—Nancy Carroll, gorgeous red-headed film actress, arrived in Reno today, prepared to establish six-weeks' residence here in order to divorce Bolton Mallory, writer, from whom she separated more than a year ago.

Miss Carroll refused to confirm or deny rumors she would marry William Van Rensellar Smith, wealthy attorney, declaring, "I may marry some one when I get my divorce but I'm not saying just now who the man of my choice will be."

Hospital News

Charles Long of Williamsport underwent an emergency operation in Berger hospital, Wednesday night.

COUNTY URGED TO SEND CITIZENS TO RELIEF MEET

AID IN PARLEY TO END CRISIS

Committee of Three Sought; Trying to Force Davey Into Calling Solons.

COLUMBUS, July 25 — Cooperation of a representative group of citizens from Pickaway-co to aid the fight against the impending relief crisis in Ohio, was urged here today at a meeting of relief leaders from 14 counties.

Assembled to force Gov. Davey's hand in the relief situation which threatens to throw 330,000 unemployable persons on local authorities for food and shelter, the relief leaders invited each county to send a group of three persons to a meeting here next week.

This conference will be held on the morning of the same day that the Governor intends to call a meeting of local authorities to find a way out of the problem.

53 Visit Davey

Led by Marc Grossman of Cleveland, the group visited the Governor yesterday afternoon. Fifty-three representatives were present to show the state's chief executive the concern that was felt in industrial communities.

They presented a demand that a special session of the Legislature be called no later than Aug. 15 to provide ways and means to solve the coming crisis brought about by the Federal government's announced action to stop direct aid for Ohio.

At least $2,500,000 per month for the next six months and $2,000,000 per month for the remainder of the year is essential to care for the state's needy, leaders asserted.

Meet Dargusch

The Governor asked the group to appoint a committee to go over the problem with Carlton Dargusch, vice-chairman of the State Taxation commission and confer with him again at the time that he will call his statewide conference. No date however was set for this confeernce. It is expected that it will be called the first part of next week.

The meeting today was called by the Ohio Institute, headed by R. E. Miles, Columbus. Although only representatives of the industrial sections were present, the problems affect every county in the state.

On August 1, the direct aid granted by the federal government to Ohio is cut from approximately $9,000,000 to $4,000,000. Although a number of persons on relief rolls are expected to be absorbed in PWA projects, each county will have to find a way of caring for at least half of the persons on relief rolls now.

Need Legislature

To solve the direct relief problem, the Governor has suggested that the state provide half and local authorities provide the other half of funds necessary. But only by legislative action can the state raise the necessary funds to provide its share of the contemplated plan. Many counties also will have to raise their share by bond issues and special elections.

Each county was urged to send a group of three representatives citizens here next week to offer a united front in bringing pressure to bear for an early legislative session.

A plan to form a state-wide relief corporation was also advanced at this meeting. At the same time, the Governor appointed Larry Wooddell, Ravenna, conservation director, and Carl Wahl, assistant highway director, to attempt to co-ordinate activities of the state with the Federal Government's recovery agencies, especially on projects of the Works Progress Administration and the PWA.

Attending yesterday's meeting were representatives from Cleveland, Lakewood, Toledo, Dayton, Canton, Warren, Steubenville, Niles, Columbus, Springfield, Mansfield, Massillon, Zanesville, and Akron.

ELSIE JANIS NOT CRITICAL

Badly Hurt, However, in Wreck With Husband; Operation Unnecessary

GREENBURGH, N. Y., July 25 — Elsie Janis, stage and radio star, who was injured seriously in an auto crash on the Saw Mill river parkway near here last night, is in no immediate danger, it was reported at the Grasslands hospital at Valhalla this morning.

Gilbert Wilson, Miss Janis' husband, who was driving the car, escaped with minor injuries. They were bound for their home at Phillipse Manor, north of Tarrytown, when they hurtled into a truck parked without lights at the side of the road.

Both were removed at once to the Grasslands hospital, where Miss Janis was first reported in a critical condition due to severe internal injuries and a possible fracture of the skull. Wilson was able to leave for home after treatment.

A hasty preliminary examination revealed the nature of the stage star's injuries to be grave, and it was decided an immediate operation would be necessary to save her life. Later, however, it became apparent no operation would be needed at once.

In a bulletin issued this morning, it was said Miss Janis was "responding favorably to treatment" and that although her condition remained unchanged, she was given an even chance to survive.

DERBY

Community Saddened

Our community was saddened last Friday afternoon when it learned that Ernest A. Houk Jr. had been struck and killed by lightning. He was standing on a wagon loading wheat to be threshed when the bolt struck him. Another boy was in front of him driving the team. This boy was unhurt but the team of horses were killed and the wagon and wheat burned.

The bolt threw Ernest, or as he was more familiarly called "Steve," from the wagon and the driver leaped to safety before the fire.

Junior was 16 years old and leaves three sisters, one half brother and his sorrowing widowed mother.

His funeral was held at the home of his sister Mrs. Clyde Delay Sunday and burial made at London.

Mrs. Bauhan Home

Mrs. Clara Bauhan who was in Grant hospital is now at home and recovering from her operations.

The Ladies Aid met last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Lilian Nance. Quite a large number of ladies were present.

We had quite a hard rain Friday, also Saturday and Sunday. Threshing was stopped until the moisture evaporated.

Raymond Collins was here for Junior Houk's funeral.

CARROLL LINWOOD BEEDY

former Republican Congressman from Maine, who came down to fight the Holding Corporation Bill for Bangor Hydro-Electric and other Maine power companies. His instructions also included word to do everything possible to beat the PWA development of the Passamaquoddy power project.

So powerful were some of these lobbyists that Henry L. Doherty was able to visit the White House during the thick of the fight and take tea with the President. Responsible for gaining him entree was gangling, gray-haired Arthur Mullen, intimate friend of Marvin McIntyre, guardian of the White House door.

Note—Now that the lobbying investigation is going places, it is interesting to watch the social columns for notes on those who are finding the heat of Washington too much for them. Among those recently listed were two significant names: Bob Jackson and Bruce Kremer.

Strange Tale

The Senate's sensational disclosures of phony telegrams against the Holding Corporation Bill sprang from an insignificant hobby on the part of one Congressman.

He is Representative D. J. Driscoll, a liberal-Democratic new-comer from St. Marys, Pa. Tall, slender, scholarly looking, with a shock of snow-white hair, Driscoll has made it a point to read personally every communication he receives.

When the flood of anti-Holding Company Bill wires began to pour in on him, he took them home to read, and it was while perusing the 1,300 telegrams in the quiet of his study, that his hobby proved so valuable.

For years Driscoll has made a practice of studying proper names, their origin and meaning. In the course of this he has found that more names begin with W than any other letter, with S. T. and D next in frequency.

But Never a "W"

In sorting the utility telegrams Driscoll was struck by the fact that four-fifths of them bore names beginning with the first five letters of the alphabet and none with the letters W. S. or T.

This singular fact led him to a close examination of the names. He has wide acquaintance in his district, but in the hundreds of wires he found only a few whom he knew.

Driscoll decided there was something much amiss and set about to check his suspicions.

He wrote to one of the names he knew. The result was for the bill.

That was enough for Driscoll. He had a private talk with Chairman Hugo Black of the Senate probers, who in turn put some secret investigators on the trail.

What followed has been headline news ever since.

DOLE'S END IN SIGHT

ON NOVEMBER 1, according to an announcement by Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, direct relief will terminate. By that time, it is believed, 3,500,000 persons will have been given jobs through the operation of the new relief system, leaving to the individual states the problem of making provision for approximately 4,000,000 "unemployables," those who, for one reason or another, are out of work even in the best of timse.

This announcement means that the administration is now entering upon the final phase of its effort to stimulate the economic recovery of the nation through lavish expenditures in behalf of the millions of unemployed. This is a heartening stage of the battle and one of great significance. Within less than four months the country, to a greater than at any time since the beginning of the present administration must stand on its own feet. Federal sustenance, in large measure, will end and the people and the individual states must prepare to go it alone.

This is welcome news because it reflects the confidence of the administration, shared by business people who have not succumbed to defeatist influences, that the country has made great progress, not toward a return to the false prosperity levels of 1929, but toward a more substantial form of economic well-being.

The dole has been a wasteful, futile means of promoting recovery. Nevertheless it has served important purposes. It has prevented starvation and it has stood in the way of the development of a degree of social unrest which might easily have found expression in serious violence. In addition, however, it has sapped the morale of the people, has robbed thousands of their self-reliance and has resulted in the development of a substantial class of people who are willing to accept lower standards of living so long as the element of labor is not involved.

While the new program of public works has been slow in starting, a logical situation in view of the organization detail involved, more rapid progress is now being made. The people of the country, considering the future and also the significant circumstances that the summer recession in trade has been relatively negligible, have a sound basis for optimism.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The statesmen may not always find it expedient to vote in the interests of the poor but this circumstance will not restrain them from shedding a few tears for the underprivileged, who, after all, have a vote, when the campaign rolls around.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Why is war? Well, Gorgas saved more lives than the World war cost, and you see no bronze statues of him.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

SPREAD OR SQUEEZE?

ONE OF THE first things noted by a careful player is squeeze possibilities. The earlier in the game such possibilities are noted the brighter are declarer's chances to make that coup. The following hand which I played at the Engineers club showed squeeze probabilities from the first lead, with game certain in case West held the missing K of clubs. Without West's double and the squeeze thought strongly in mind I would have taken a heart finesse at the twelfth trick and gone down two tricks.

	♠ 5 4 3 ♥ 9 7 ♦ A 8 5 ♣ A J 10 8 7
♠ K Q J 10 2 ♥ Q 5 4 ♦ K 7 3 ♣ 4 3	W. N. E. S.	♠ 8 7 ♥ 10 8 3 2 ♦ J 10 9 2 ♣ K 6 2
	♠ A 9 6 ♥ A K J 6 ♦ Q 6 4 ♣ Q 9 5

Bidding went: South, 1-No Trump; West, 2-Spades; North, 3-Clubs; South, 3-No Trumps, which West doubled.

Of course the opening lead was the K of spades. East played the 7. Then West led the bottom of his sequence, the 10. When East played the 8 it was evident that he held no more. My Ace took the trick.

West's double showed at least two possible cards of re-entry. He was too cautious a player to double on a single hope of entry. He might hold both missing K's and the Q of hearts. If West held the missing K of clubs the contract could certainly be fulfilled. I led the Q of clubs and lost to East's K. Back came the J of diamonds, which I knew better than to cover with the Q. Holding the third defensive trick East led the 10 of diamonds and was allowed to hold that also. When the 2 of diamonds was led the Q, K and Ace fell together, as expected. All remaining tricks had to be won to fulfill the game contract.

The 7 of hearts was led from dummy. East played low. The K won. West played the 4. The 9 of clubs took the eighth trick and dummy's 10 of clubs won the next trick. West let go his 2 of spades. His original hand could be counted for the 5-3-3-2 distribution. The tenth trick was won with dummy's Ace of clubs. East discarded his last diamond. I let go the 6 of hearts. West discarded next to his last spade. He was commencing to feel the pressure of being squeezed. The holdings about the table were as shown below.

	♠ 5 ♥ 9 ♣ J
♠ Q ♥ Q 5	W. N. E. S.	♥ 10 8 3
	♠ 9 ♥ A J

When the last club was led I let go my last spade. East let go his lowest heart and so did West. He had to keep his lone spade. Dummy's last heart was led. East covered with the 10. It was deceptive. He might hold the Q and West might have the lone 8, but I played the Ace and caught West's Q, leaving the J good for the ninth trick for game.

THE DEVIL'S MANSION

COPYRIGHT By REX JARDIN

READ THIS FIRST:

Driving through a terrific thunderstorm in western Canada, Blair Rodman skids off the road and into a ditch. A light through the trees beckons him. Blair comes upon a large house but a homely woman servant refuses to admit him. Forcing his way in, the mistress of the house, a strange-looking person, says she can do nothing for him.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

A LARGE woman, Blair thought, even larger than the other. He was not small himself, being some five feet eleven and a half in height, but this woman, who must obviously be the mistress of the house, seemed taller than he was.

"I'm a peaceable man, madam," he started again, "please believe me . . ." he stopped short, for in the folds of the woman's neck, he thought he saw something moving. He strained his eyes to see, then turned away quickly to hide his disgust. Held by a tiny gold chain, so fine it seemed to be made of thread, was a small chameleon, exactly the color of her yellow skin. Green eyes like emeralds studded the head, and a red tongue, like a fang, protruded from the open moving mouth.

It was alive, and no larger than his little finger!

"You will leave immediately!" The woman demanded, her voice rising until it was nearly a shriek. Blair caught a note of fear in it.

"If you will tell me where I am . . . and how I can get to the next town . . . I tell you I'm lost . . . you have plenty of room to keep me for the night, if you will!"

"I have not!"

Blair looked back at the woman called Nita. She was standing where he had left her at the door, her lips still closed, her brown eyes on him. She, too, was dressed in black, although her dress was cheap and ill fitting, with full old-fashioned balloon sleeves.

"Haven't you a barn, any place, where I could stay?" Blair pleaded. He could hear the rain beating down on the windows, the frantic tap-tap of it on a tin pipe somewhere near.

The room was warm, almost too warm. He wondered how the woman could sit so close to the fire.

"You will leave, sir."

"Have you a telephone?"

"I have not!"

The chameleon was crawling down the woman's neck, and now it was half on her black dress bosom. Its color was changing slowly to a dirty gray, but its eyes were still like bright emeralds, and its red tongue was beating around wildly.

A door at the side swung open, as if a heavy weight had pushed it. And a dog stood snarling near him.

The woman at the fireplace had turned away, picked up a book which was on her lap.

Blair stood undecided, looking from the dog to the woman who must be the servant. He thought, although he was not sure, that a look of fear came into her eyes.

The dog, more like a wolf than a dog, came toward him slowly, its ears

The dog came toward him slowly.

lifted into two sharp points, its lips bared, its eyes red coals, glowing, burning red coals. Blair shifted his feet uneasily. The dog was a big beast, larger than a wolf, and yet not as large as a Great Dane. Its dark brown body was slender, and its head was big in proportion to its body.

The woman by the fire appeared to have forgotten him. She was bending over her book.

The dog was beside him now; he could feel the hot breath from its nostrils on his bare hands. Snarling like a wild animal it jumped at him.

Blair leaped aside and ran through the door which the servant was still holding half open, the dog at his heels. Down the porch, and through the high grass field he ran, stumbling now and then over some obstruction in the way. At the edge of the field the dog stopped and stood watching him while he ran on, until he had crossed the creek and was safe in his car.

Reaching down in the pocket at the side of the car, Blair found his revolver, and grasped it nervously, panting from his unwonted exertion.

Who were those fiends in that house? Fiends who would let a dog attack a man in their own house?

That woman with the live chameleon chained to her neck . . . hugging the fire so closely . . . Nita who held open the door for him. If she hadn't, well, he wouldn't be here now.

Whatever had possessed him to drive at night in a territory he didn't know? He must have missed the right road miles back.

Blair was sorry for a moment he had started on this western trip. Two months ago he was contented and reasonably happy in New York, without a thought of driving to the Pacific coast. Then a letter from Mark Taller, and an invitation to visit his new lodge in British Columbia. The flip of a coin, and he had started driving, instead of the more sensible method of going by train.

True, he had had a fine time with Taller, but by this time the motor fever was well in his blood, and he decided after a few weeks' visit with his friend to go on to Vancouver, and from there down the coast.

How Taller had found this place of his in the mountains, miles from civilization, he didn't know. But Mark declared he was never going back to New York again, that he could write so much better away by himself.

But now he couldn't sit here, and get pneumonia! Blair threw the robe over his shoulders, dug another cap from his bag, and debated what he should do. If he stayed and fell asleep in the car, with his clothing soaked, his shoes wet, in the morning he might have a bad cold. And he didn't relish colds. If he walked down the road, at a decent clip, he would at least keep warm. And he might find a town beyond. No more bursting into lighted houses, he decided grimly.

Dinner Stories

LONG DISTANCE, PLEASE

The chief salesman of a company in a west coast city had a very loud voice.

One morning when the manager arrived at the office he heard a terrific noise coming from the salesman's office.

"Who is that shouting?"

"That's Mr. Hill talking to New York," replied the secretary.

"Then tell him to use the telephone."

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

The screen's greatest star in the screen's greatest comedy toriumph! The star of stars in the hit of hits!

Such has been the critical acclaim of John Barrymore's outstanding performance in Columbia's screen version of Broadway's great comedy smash, "20th Century," at the Grand Theatre.

Significantly, it was Barrymore himself who led the vanguard of raves with his own unsolicited declaration: "I've never done anything I like as well as this role. It's immense! A role that comes once in an actor's lifetime!"

AT THE CIRLCLE

Lovers of dogs will admire the fine specimens of Great Danes used in the filming of "Power," the Gaumont British screen production of Lion Feuchtwanger's famous book of the same name now playing at the Circle Theatre.

The script called for a leash of hounds. The breed used by hunters in the eighteenth century, the period in which the picture is set, have long been extinct, but in their stead, eight magnificent and pedigreed Danes were secured.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Patricia Ellis, one of the screen's youngest and loveliest leading ladies, plays the principal feminine role of Paramount's "Hold 'Em Yale," the new Damon Runyon film coming Friday to the Cliftona Theatre.

Featured with Cesar Romero, Larry Crabbe, William Frawley, Andy Devine and George Barbier, Miss Ellis plays a dizzy young heiress whose infatuation for uniforms gets her into plenty of trouble and almost causes a group of Broadway "hard citizens" to lose their collective mind.

Infatuated with the phony aviator's uniform worn by one of the "gang" she leaves home and lands in their hide-out where they plan to hold her until they can extract money from her father.

Poems That Live

A SUMMER WOOING

The wind went wooing the rose,
For the rose was fair.
How the rough wind won her, who knows?
But he left her bare,
Far away from her grace he blows:
Does the free wind care?

PY LOOP TO RESUME PLAY NEXT MONDAY

Permit Steinhauser to Enter High School Boys; Play Deals Controlled.

All difficulties which the recreation ball league had encountered in the last week were cleared up Wednesday evening when league team managers met in The Herald office. Squirrel Jones, manager of the Jones Specials, was the only absentee.

It was agreed to permit David Steinhauser to enter a team of high school boys to play under the banner of the Circleville Oils. All former members of the Oil team are free to join any team they wish, Glenn Nickerson, backer, declared.

Steinhauser will have on his squad, Carle, Sweyer, Henderson, Carothers, Rankin, Kirwin, Speakman, Curtain, Osborne and Smith. He is entitled to one other player in addition to himself.

With Same Teams

Emphatic announcement that players who performed in the first half still belong to the teams they played with at that time was made by President Frank Lynch. Several of the managers were under the impression that at the end of the first half players could join any team they wanted for the second half. "This is entirely wrong," the president said.

Joe Glitt, manager of the Pickaway Dairy team, announced that he had given Snyder, catcher, his release so he could play with the Purina Chow team, where he is employed. The Purinas are using all their own employes with the exception of First Baseman Ivy Trimmer and Third Baseman Ike Brungs. Mart Hickey, Clarkie Stevens and several others are free to join whoever they please providing they first turn in their sweaters to the Chows. Unless they surrender their sweaters, President Lynch announces they will not be permitted to play with any other team.

Play on Monday

No effort will be made to resume the league schedule until Monday evening when the newly-formed Circleville Oil meets the Pickaway Dairy outfit.

On Tuesday the Cities Service and Purina Chow teams are scheduled, Wednesday the Eshelman Feeds and Circleville Oils play and Thursday the Pickaway Dairy and Cities Service teams are booked. An effort may be made to transfer this game to Friday evening since the Cities Service crew is booked at Newark for a game against the crack Richmer Oils on Thursday evening.

TREAT AT HARBOR HILLS

There's a real treat in store Saturday and Sunday on the Harbor Hills field at Buckeye Lake when the Iriquois Polo club of Lexington, Ky. meets the Harbor Hills team at 3 o'clock each day. The Lexington outfit is rated at five goals in the U. S. Polo association and has a fine string of mounts. An Oklahoma team is also to perform in the Sunday games with a round-robin of six chukkers between the three teams planned. It would be worth your while to witness at least one of the matches * * *

TURN IN SWEATERS

There is little glory, if any, in recreation ball or in any other sport for that matter, but it has always been a custom where requested by the management for athletes to turn in their sweaters at the end of the season or at any time the management might ask—The Purina Chows have refused some of their first half players but a few of them have refused to turn in their jerseys—Frank Lynch, league president, has refused to permit the players to join in other teams until they hand in the sweaters * * * * * *

RAMBLING AROUND

Some baseball reports: Pittsburgh fans are souring on their old favorite, Pie Traynor, but his job still seems secure — Benny Bengough, former popular American association catcher, suffered a broken arm last week on a foul tip. Tom Carey, who performed a short while for the Red Birds a couple of years ago, has been purchased by Rogers Hornsby of the Browns. FIVE YEARS AGO, Dizzy Dean won 17 games for St. Joseph in the Western league and was transferred to Houston; TEN YEARS AGO, Ty Cobb, manager-outfielder of Detroit, was leading the American league with a batting average of .404 — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dean are expecting —

FIGURES SHOW CLOSE CONTESTS

NEW YORK, July 25 If the Yankees beat the Tigers in the final game of their series this afternoon, they will hold first place by a full game. The standings would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Yanks	52	33	.612
Tigers	54	36	.600

If the Tigers win, they will lead the Yanks by a full game and a half. The standings would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Tigers	55	35	.611
Yanks	51	34	.600

The Giants, leading by a game and a half, play the Cards a double-header this afternoon. A twin triumph would put them three and a half games in front, as follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Giants	57	30	.655
Cards	54	34	.614

A split in the two games would leave the game and a half margin undisturbed. The standings would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Giants	56	31	.644
Cards	55	33	.625

But the Giants can go out of the lead for the first time since late April if they should drop both ends of their double bill. The Cards would then lead by half a game with the standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cards	56	32	.636
Giants	55	32	.632

STITH MAY HURL HERE ON SUNDAY

Doc Stith, one of the best softball pitchers in Columbus, is expected to accompany the Hill Tailors here Sunday when they play the Ford V-88 in a game on the SOElectric Co. field.

Members of the V-8 team will get a lot of swinging exercise if Stith is along, but the ball won't be where they swing, it will probably be on the way back to the pitcher.

OHIO DUCATS NEARLY GONE

Taylor Expects All Season Tickets To Be Sold Prior To August 1.

COLUMBUS, July 25 With a boom noted in the sale of season tickets and a flood of inquiries received at the Ohio State university football ticket office, Buckeye officials today looked toward the 1935 grid season to far surpass previous attendance records at Ohio stadium.

Henry Taylor, director of ticket sales at the university, revealed that over 1,800 of the available 2,000 season tickets have already been disposed with the remaining few sure to be sold in advance of August 1, closing date for ordering seasonal ducats.

The season tickets were placed on sale June 1 selling for $9.50 with $5 to be paid upon application and the remaining amount before September 1.

Upon disposal of the season tickets, Taylor and his corps of workers will start mailing out single contest tickets to approximately 60,000 applicants.

Advance indications point that the Ohio State-Notre Dame game here Nov. 2 will draw one of the biggest crowds in Buckeye history. It is freely predicted that a crowd of approximately 100,000 fans wouldn't be a surprise at the Buck-Irish contest.

INDIANS WIN SEVEN

COLUMBUS, July 25.—The Indianapolis Indians ran their latest winning streak up to seven by defeating Toledo, 11 to 4, and today were one-half game removed from the league-leading Minneapolis Millers who were swamped, 19 to 9, by Milwaukee.

The Indians' win also gave them a better grasp on second place with the third-place Columbus Red Birds splitting a doubleheader, losing the first, 9 to 6, and taking the nightcap, 19 to 2, in a six-inning game which was halted by rain.

St. Paul rallied to score four runs in the eighth and then sent three more across in the tenth to defeat Kansas City, 10 to 7. The win evened the current series between the Kaws and Saints.

'TEEING OFF'

A number of Pickaway Country club golfers got better acquainted Wednesday with their new professional, Emil Hrobon, at a fine stag party. The pro gave them some pointers on golf, touching on putting and all its intricacies.

A new order of things has gone into operation at the club. The fairways are in splendid condition so summer golf is now being played. Of course, if a golfer wants to do so he can tee-up, but it is advised that he doesn't since summer golf will be demanded in all tournament play.

Willis Liston is the latest addition to the club's golfing roster.

The London golf team will come here next Wednesday, July 31, to meet the Pickaway Country club team.

Marian Martin Pattern

Complete Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart Included

PATTERN 9487

Marian Martin pleases the little girl who wants to look "pretty" and the Mother who wants her to look "neat" by cleverly combining features of both in pattern 9487. You must admit that collar and smooth yoke are as neat and prim as anyone could want—so is the tailored front panel releasing into pleats! And little sister will note with glee it has precious puffed sleeves and a perky bow that make her feel as dressed-up as can be. Five pretty buttons make an inexpensive trimming for a dress that's ready for every occasion. Make it of dainty dimity, or sturdier gingham, percale or shantung. Complete, Diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9487 may be ordered only in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 requires 2½ yards 36 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

GRAHAM LISTS HIS PLATFORM

Candidate for G. O. P. Nomination Discusses 10 Departments In Campaign.

Will J. Graham, Circleville native and an active Republican for many years, today announced the platform upon which he is basing his campaign for the Republican nomination for mayor.

It follows:

Police Force

Sufficient force to afford protection to the community and deal properly with all emergencies that arise. Police the entire city. Social justice for all and no favorites. More rigid enforcement of traffic laws and making our streets safer for pedestrians.

Fire Department

Proper maintenance to render utmost efficiency at all times.

Library

In favor of still wider use of our already well patronized library. Owing to the enforced leisure on the part of our unemployed citizens we could have directive education for new leisure, study hours, reading clubs. Reading with a purpose.

Health

Strict enforcement of quarantine laws, Health education, prevention and cure.

Service Department

Proper upkeep and repair of all streets. Prompt removing of rubbish. Equal distribution of street work among the needy. Giving the best possible service for the money spent.

Civic

The bonds of trade, industry, agriculture, education, religion should be strengthened by co-operation and unity. Let us get together and work for that which helps mankind and the conditions of our city.

I believe that each person has a civic duty or contribution for uplift to render this community.

Welfare

We are all members of the human family. The National, State and City governments are dependant on us. I will use whatever means I may honorably command to develop in our citizens a greater loyalty, in a co-operative way to the three great rocks on which this civilization was built. The Home—The School — The Church. It is our community environment which finally etermines the quality of human life. Here takes place of impact of education upon the unprejuiced child soul which produces the motives and reactions of adult life.

Merchants

I will use any means that are within my power to assist and further the interests of our local merchants.

Labor

Labor has suffered too great a decline to be redeemed through unaided efforts of our rulers and statesmen. I promise co-operation, equal distribution of all work to all classes, creeds and races.

Finance

Competent business administration of the city's affairs. For economy wherever possible. Wise spending of the taxpayer's money. No waste. Endeavor to live within our income.

Paul Gnau, Canton community chairman, protested more definite program is necessary to convince federal authorities that Ohio is attempting to do its share in meeting the relief problem."
